S1 SESSION COMMENTARY
AFTERNOON SESSION
SGTJ
14 SEPTEMBER 1987

The ideogram drills obviously helped as evidenced by the nice circular island ideogram. My reversal of the feeling was rather disconcerting, that WAS FLUID I felt in the center. The system, fortunately, as usual did not hesitate to correct itself. I still find it remarkable how when I miss what is going on in one ideogram after one or two tries, the system will present the same data in a new form. Very reassuring. I still wonder though, who is teaching whom (conscious vs unconscious).

Continuing to bilocate after the session is over is annoying. I hope that as I progress, a program will be inserted that will let my conscious know when I'm still on site. I have the feeling however, that this is going to be a problem that will get worse before it gets better. Maybe meditating between site sessions would help clear my mind (or get it back in one piece at the same place in space/time).

I also need to learn to call confusion breaks for myself. I hesitate to call a break because I don't want to leave until I understand what I am sensing. This is self-defeating, because calling a break will provide feedback to my unconscious which in turn will help to rectify the situation on the next iteration of the coordinates.
